DECLARATION OF BRIAN DUFFY IN SUPPORT OF OPPOSER'S REPLY ACR BRIEF

I, Hugh Brian Duffy, declare as follows:

1. I am the Chief Executive Officer of Aurum Group Limited ("Aurum"), which is comprised of four brands: Mappin & Webb, Watches of Switzerland, Goldsmiths, and Watchshop. As Aurum CEO, I provide strategic direction and management to Aurum and I oversee the planned expansion of the MAPPIN & WEBB brand into the U.S., among other things.

2. Before joining Aurum in February 2014, I held a number of senior executive positions in the fashion industry for over a decade. Since 2003 until 2014, I was European President of Ralph Lauren where I oversaw that brand's expansion into Russia, Turkey, and other Eastern European countries, tripling sales to more than $ 1.2 billion. I travelled to the U.S. at least monthly for senior management meetings including with Ralph Lauren, himself. I was also a member of the Executive Committee overseeing worldwide strategy and business including the U.S. Before then, I was Corporate Vice President for Sarah Lee Corporation for four years, living and working in the U.S., and the Chief Financial Officer for Playtex worldwide.

3. I have reviewed Applicant's Main ACR Brief and the supporting declarations submitted by Applicant's designer Marissa Webb, her financial investor Randy Kercho, and her counsel David Diamond.

4. In the declarations, Webb and Kercho state that Marissa Webb is well-known in the fashion industry. Despite my extensive experience in the fashion industry, including working for over a decade as European President of one of the most famous U.S. fashion brands—Ralph Lauren—I had never heard of Marissa Webb or her MARISSA WEBB apparel label before this proceeding.

5. Both Webb and Kercho opine that consumers will not abbreviate the mark MAPPIN & WEBB to M WEBB because it is "counterintuitive" and not how brand names are abbreviated in the fashion industry. According to Kercho, in the fashion industry, consumers will likely abbreviate MAPPIN & WEBB to "MW," "M&W," "Mappin & W," "Mappin W," but supposedly never to "M Webb." (Kercho Decl. ¶ 15.) To support this conclusion, Applicant's counsel David Diamond provides examples of "various fashion brands whose marks consist of two words separated by an ampersand ('&') or the word 'and,' and which have been shortened or abbreviated to the first word or the first initials of each word," including Abercrombie & Fitch to "Abercrombie" and "A&F," Cutter & Buck to "CB," and Dolce & Gabanna to "Dolce," "DG," and "D&G." (Diamond Decl. ¶ 9.)

6. There is, however, no magical formula for abbreviating brand names in the fashion industry. Indeed, Abercrombie & Fitch has abbreviated its name to "A & Fitch" on clothing:

Reference ID: WAN374031641-M

Abercrombie Fitch T-shirt, A&Fitch edition, Maroon Color, HF441PW. Abercrombie Fitch Men's Short Sleeve T-Shirts, Abercrombie

8. Consumers abbreviate Dolce & Gabbana to "D Gabanna":

(True and correct copies of website printouts are attached as Exhibit 3.)

9. Below is a chart of additional examples in the fashion and other industries that show the public abbreviating double-surname brand names to the first initial of the first word, followed by the entirety of the second word:

10. In its brief, Applicant also argues that MAPPIN & WEBB and M WEBB are different because “[t]he use of a single consonant followed by a surname”—M WEBB—“carries the meaning of an abbreviated first name.” (Applicant’s Main ACR Br. 12.) That’s not necessarily true in the fashion industry.

11. A good example is J. Crew, who Applicant worked for. “J” in front of “Crew” is not an abbreviation of a first name, but, apparently does not stand for anything. (Exhibit 13.) A popular jewellery brand W. BRITT is an abbreviation of its designer’s name—Brittany Weiss. But the single consonant “W” is shorthand for the designer’s last name, not her first name. (Exhibit 14.)

12. Fact is, like in any other industry, brands in the fashion industry are abbreviated in a number of different ways. The same brand can have several different abbreviations: Neiman Marcus has been abbreviated to “Neiman,” “NM,” and “N Marcus”; “Cutter & Buck” to “CB” and “C-Buk”; “Dolce & Gabanna” to “DG,” “D&G,” “Dolce,” and “D Gabanna”; and so on. Consequently, Kercho and Webb have no basis for saying that U.S. consumers will not abbreviate MAPPIN & WEBB to M WEBB.

I declare under penalty of perjury of the laws of the United States that the foregoing is true and correct to the best of my knowledge pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1746. This declaration was executed on September 3, 2015 in London, United Kingdom.

Hugh Brian Duffy

W. Fargo loses fraud case, to pay $30m

Karen Bleier/AFP/Getty Images

The American flag flies above the flag for Wells Fargo banks in Woodbury, Minn.

Friday, June 4, 2010 - 17:35

TEXT OF STORY

Kai Ryssdal: If your investments went bad during the recession, you're out of luck, right? You can't really blame your bank or your investment adviser for what happened. Or can you? A jury in Minnesota says yes, indeed you can. They ruled today that Wells Fargo owes four nonprofits who trusted the bank to look after their money $30 million. Jurors said the bank stopped looking after its clients' best interests and started looking after its own.

Jeff Horwich reports.

Jeff Horwich: Susan Lundy sat on the jury, and listened to Wells Fargo's argument: The investments seemed safe at the time. They did their best to cope with a huge economic meltdown. But in testimony, she says bank executives seemed confused, and out of touch with the complex investments they had gotten into.

SUSAN LUNDY: They sat up there and basically said things like, "I didn't know we had a securities lending department, I didn't know what an SIV was, I had to look it up on Wikipedia." So I know it's a huge corporation, but that didn't settle well with me.

Then came glimpses into the bank's internal panic, as the market tanked: E-mails that refer to the clients as "hostages" -- that openly worry whether to tell them how bad things were.

LUNDY: When things fell apart, there were bad decisions that were made. And I think by sticking by those decisions, they did not adhere to their fiduciary duty.

"Fiduciary duty" -- basically a legal term for putting your clients' interests first. The jury said Wells Fargo fell short, not least by letting some big investors get their money out while keeping small ones in the dark.

In a statement, Wells Fargo says it's pleased with the small size of the damages -- plaintiffs wanted much more. But the verdict encourages lawyers like Terry Fruth, whose clients lost money in the same investment.

TERRY FRUTH: Wells Fargo finds itself in the position of the Philip Morris tobacco company -- that is, it's been decided that this product is not safe and should be avoided by certain people.

Fruth says the jury did not find Wells Fargo was willfully trying to harm its clients -- it just got in over its head. But now attorneys like Fruth know: You can call that negligence, and it's good enough for $30 million.

I'm Jeff Horwich for Marketplace.

W-F was my favorite bank, but after seeing that they laundered $420 Billion in Mexican cartel drug money, turned a blind eye to their duty to report transactions identified by the FBI as 'red flags' indicative of money laundering, and made sure their compliance officer was "well-paid to not know, and not report, the banks transgressions", I will have to revise my opinion. W-F earned $130+ Million in these transactions, but only paid a $10 Million fine. I am sure that it is business as usual today. I can understand W-F acting this way, but why didn't the Justice Dept go for the entire profit ($130M), PLUS the $10M fine? That would have sent the right message, that you will not profit from illegal actions: instead the message is that you are going to have to pay us off if you are going to do something corrupt....

Had a foreclosure about 2 yrs ago, F Mae owns property, had a home equity loan, aren't they supposed to pay that off?

this home equity loan was from a bank not the mortg co. and the bank was in first place, but mortg co initiated foreclosure, are they supposed to pay off that loan, it is still on my credit report as charged off with a balance owed? 6,000.

The foreclosure likely "extinguished" the second mortgage lien held by the bank. Although the lien was extinguished in the bankruptcy, the loan - the note - was not. It was still a debt that you owed. The charge off indicates that the lender decided not to pursue you for the $6,000.

It neither creates an attorney-client relationship nor provides legal guidance or advice. The answer is based on the limited information provided and the answer might be different had additional information been provided. You should consult an attorney.

My colleague is correct. And keep in mind that a "charge off" doesn't necessarily mean that the $6,000 is now gone. Just that the lender decided not to pursue you directly regarding it. They may have sold the debt to someone else who may now pursue you for it as well. You'll know if and when they contact you but these things tend to have a way of continuing to pop up...

How is the sub-prime loan debacle effecting national mortgage companies like Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac?

They aren't.

F Mae and F Mac do not originate subprime loans.

The Shadow

February 1, 2014 at 8:29 am

Technically, neither Fannie Mae or Freddie Mac purchases subprime loans. Therefore, these don't directly effect either company.

However, they have been affected by mounting defaults on lower quality loans that they do purchase. Contrary to what many people believe, not all of the current mortgage problems are subprime. Many companies have been hit by higher defaults on so-called "Alt A" mortgages which are higher quality than subprime but lower quality than prime.

Fannie Mae has had to set aside funds to cover defaulted mortgages. They have also had to raise additional capital by issuing new preferred stock and by reducing their dividend.

J.Crew Aficionada

A blog devoted to my favorite retail obsession: J.Crew. It's all about J.Crew fashion, style, news, and shopping experience. A place to discuss all aspects of J.Crew.

FAQ {about J.Crew}

Where did "J.Crew" come from?

Jezebel (click here) has the answer for us: We called ...and asked, "What does the J stand for?" The J.Crew customer service rep said, "We get asked a lot. The man who started the company liked to row, so he chose 'crew' and a letter that looked good in front of it."

How can I reach J.Crew?

Email: contactus@jcrew.com
Phone: (800) 562-0258 (open 24 hours / 7 days a week)
Fax: (434) 385-5750 (for order forms or questions)

About W. BRITT

Page Info

Start Date	Founded on January 1, 2012
Short Description	W. BRITT is a contemporary jewelry line that finds inspiration in architecture, cityscapes and the counterbalance of contrasting elements. www.wbritt.com
Company Overview	W. BRITT finds inspiration in architecture, cityscapes, and the counterbalance of contrasting elements. Founder and Designer Brittany Weiss seeks to create harmony between the functionality of industrial elements and the beauty of classic design.
Long Description	W. BRITT takes inspiration from the bank of what society and industry has developed, and builds upon it to create a new perspective. As jewelry is an accessory with no functionality, W. BRITT strives to create a personal journey for each piece designed, allowing the wearer to form an emotional connection to every piece they bring into their own collections. W. BRITT's debut collection, Assembly Line, is an ode to the process of creation in both a physical and conceptual sense, seeking to create a harmony between the functionality of industrial elements and the beauty of classic design. W.BRITT finds inspiration in the balance of an urban environment, focusing on the interpretation of geometric elements combined with the ease of everyday adornment. Subtly sexy with an alluring magnetism, the first collection has a bold attitude without sacrificing femininity.
